Is a township and pleasant village in a neighbourhood richly diversified with picturesque beauty, half a mile S.S.W. from Sandbach, intersected by the North Staffordshire Railway and the Trent & Mersey canal; a considerable part of the village north of the Wheelock is in Sandbach township; here are salt works, two breweries, and three silk factories, only one, however, of the latter is now occupied. Messrs. Bull, of Congleton, employ upwards of 70 hands in this establishment; the township contains 666a, 2r, 3p. of land, of a light, sandy nature, and at the last census in 1841, there were 120 houses and 574 inhabitants; population in 1801, 189; in 1831, 440. Tateable value, £2,223:16:0.

G.H.Ackers, Esq. is the land owner. The vicarial tithes were commuted in 1839 for £49.14.3, which are paid to the vicar of Sandbach. The impropriate tithes, £75 are paid to James Skerratt, Esq.

Wheelock gave name to an ancient family, who possessed the manor as early as the reign of Henry II. Upon the death of Richard de Wheelock without issue, in 1439, this manor passed to Thomas Worth, who married the heiress of that family: the only daughter of Mr. Worth, brought it to Richard Leversage, Esq. During the civil war, William Leversage sold this manor, to the wrongful disinheritor, as it is said, of his nephew, then in his minority, to Thomas Stephens, Esq. who continued in possession in 1662. The immediate descendants of the Leversages, who are called by Webb in his Itinerary esquired of special respectable tradesman at Nantwich. The Manor of Wheelock was sold by Mr. Stevens to Richard Vernon, Esq. of whose trustees it was purchased by Edward Power, Esq.; about the year 1786 the Ackers family became possessed of it. G.H.Ackers, Esq., is the present proprietor.

The small river Wheelock passes through the township, and falls into the Dane below Middlewich; on both sides this river, in the townships of Sandbach and Betchton, brine springs are found at a depth of 60 yards and salt is made in considerable quantities: it is conveyed along the Trent & Mersey canal on the bank of which commodious warehouses have been erected.

A Chapel of ease dedicated to our Saviour, was erected at a cost of about £1,000, which was chiefly raised by subscriptions; it is a small brick fabric, and has an endowment of £300 from the rural chapel fund. The living is a perpetual curacy in the gift of the vicar of Sandbach, and incumbency of the Rev. Thomas Gardner Morgan. A neat parsonage has been erected a short distance south east from the chapel.

The Independent Chapel, A neat small structure, will hold 200 persons. The Wesleyan Methodist Chapel will accommodate about 250 hearers. The Baptist Chapel at Wheelock Heath is a venerable fabric, the congregation of which, in former times, were frequently honoured with the ministrations of the celebrated Matthew Henry.
